

Describe a scene at an examination centre

Or

The scene at an examination Centre

---

The scene at an examination Centre is worth watching. An examination Centre is a place of feverish activity. Some of the students reach early at the Centre. They generally carry books with them. They go on reading and reading their books and notes till the last minute. Most of the students look very nervous. As soon as the bell goes, the candidates rush to the examination hall. Shortly afterwards, answer-books are distributed. After filling in their roll numbers and other particulars, the candidates wait for the question papers anxiously. When the question papers are handed over, they are seen going through them, first hurriedly and then slowly then they start writing the answers to the question during the three hours, they are deeply absorbed in attempting the question. Then the bell goes and the answer-books are collected by the supervisory staff. The candidates leave for their homes after a short while. Within half an hour, the Centre presents a deserted look.