A stitch in time saves nine and a malady that is curable today and within the control of the physician may become incurable tomorrow and get out of the control of the physician.

As they say, evil should be mapped in the bad. At any rate, it should not be allowed to gain a firm foothold. Once it gets a foothold, it becomes very difficult to eliminate it. It is easier to prevent a boy from smoking if he started smoking only a few days back than if he has been smoking for the last year.

A student should always keep in mind to postpone doing the work which he can do today to tomorrow. When work piles on work he begins feeling nervous and diffident with the result that my times the fails in the examination. A stitch in time does save nine.

A stitch in time saves nine is a plea for immediate action and promptness and agility in life. Postponement of action is often injurious. We should clutch opportunities. Once we let them go unnoticed, it becomes difficult to call them back. John Ruskin did not let opportunities skip away, he always tried to stitch in time. He realized fully the importance of today and as Date Carriage tells us in his wonderful book: ‘How to stop worrying and start living, he had on his desk a simple piece of stone on which was carved one word – Today.

A stitch in time saves one from a lot of mental worries and brooding. One who does not work on time keeps on worrying and brooding over the work till it is not done.

One should not allow things to deteriorate. A cold, if not treated at the right time, may develop into pneumonia. Timely stop or action is always safe and sound. Delays are dangerous.

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

The proverb, 'A stitch in time saves nine is applicable to a host of situations. This proverb literally means that if one does not immediately sew a small hole in a garment eventually the small hole will take on the proportions of a big tear and the garment might end beyond the state of repair. So it goes to say that it is better to deal with trouble when it first appears rather than put it off for later when it will be more difficult to deal with.

Most times, we tend to neglect small things pushing them to the back of our minds, these neglect later results in bigger losses. If there is a crack in the ceiling it is prudent to have it repaired immediately before it turns into something bigger and leads to the entire ceiling coming, crashing down someday. It makes sense for students to study a little every day so that on the day of the examinations they are free from worry. Despite understanding this proverb time and time again we are faced with situations in our life where a little attention, in the beginning, could have meant the saving of a lot of time in the end. Almost all of us at some point in our lives have misplaced our keys. If we had kept them in the right place, we would have spared ourselves the time we took looking for them later.

When it comes to matters of health, we are often guilty of being negligent. We continue to eat fast foods and unhealthy food totally avoiding exercise. This results in a lot of weight gain which leads to other complications like diabetes, arthritis, etc. All these complications could be -avoided if we had taken care of the diet in the first place. Timely prevention is always better than cure. When one ties one's shoelaces, one should make sure that they are secure. It takes just a fraction of a second to do this, but most of us won't be bothered to do it. The result: in a few hours unknown to the wearer the shoelaces come undone and the wearer ends up tripping on one's own shoes. This is another example of how a stitch in time saves nine.

At work, we are aware that we should be taking back-ups on the computer. However, one tends to get lazy and puts off the back up till later and often the system hangs and one ends up having to do the entire work all over again.

This proverb can be related to relationships as well. Often there are misunderstandings at home between father and mother, between children and their parents. It is important that these differences be cleared before they reach the point where they begin to change the nature of the relationship itself

A stitch in time saves nine applies to everybody and this phrase can be applied to almost everything in our lives. 'Procrastination is the thief of time', so we must make sure to make a timely stitch which will prevent us from having to make several later.

A stitch in time saves nine

Timely action is the key to success. We should overcome our difficulties as they arise. A problem left unsolved may become more complex with time, thereby making it more difficult to solve. Postponement or avoidance of solutions may be due to laziness, timidity, or inability to take difficult decisions. But, for whatever reason, problems cannot remain unresolved forever. They will have to be solved sooner than later. Moreover, postponing of solutions will result in wastage of time available for them and will make solution attempts thereafter, hasty and unplanned. Such haste and lack of planning may cause mistakes which will further complicate attempts to solve problems.
