Many people believe that animals possess a sixth sense and know when the earth is going to shake. Some experts believe that animals' more acute hearing helps them to hear or feel earth's vibration. They can sense an approaching disaster long before human beings realise what's going on.

We cannot be sure whether animals have a sixth sense or not. But the fact is that the giant waves that rolled through the Indian Ocean killed more than 1,50,000 people in a dozen countries but not many animals have been reported dead.

Along India's Cuddalore coast, where thousands of people perished when hit by Tsunami on 26 December, 2004, buffaloes, goats and dogs were found unharmed.

A Sri Lankan gentleman who lives on the coast near Galle said, his two dogs would have gone for their daily run on the beach. That day they refused to go and most probably that saved his life.

Q.3. Read the following passage carefully.

One night, I managed to escape and reached the shore. There I saw people gathering peppers. I told them my tale and they took me to a nearby island. They introduced me to their king. I lived in the king's palace as the royal guest. One day, I went around the island. I observed that most people rode horses but none of them had saddles or stirrups. I thought of gifting the king with these. So I got some leather to make them such sets. When I gifted these to the king and told him of their advantage, he was very happy and thankful. He said, "Sindbad, my friend, you've made riding such a pleasure."

When the courtiers saw the saddle, they as well as the subjects ordered for more to be made. I got busy making more such items and earned some money. Then one day, the king called me and said, "Sindbad, in return for all you've done, I give a lady of my house in marriage to you."

I was not at all keen to marry anyone but I agreed so as not to hurt the king's feelings. When the lady was introduced to me, I was speechless. She was indeed a very beautiful woman and had a very sweet smile, too. She was soft spoken and humble. I married her, according to the rituals of the island and spent a happy life with her.

Now, arrange the following sentences in a meaningful order.
