

Chapter 12

Colonial Cities

(2 MARKS)

1. To what extent are census data useful in reconstruction patterns of urbanization in the colonial context?

Ans. Census data are very useful in reconstructing pattern of urbanization in the colonial context.

(i) These data are useful of know exact number of population as well as the total population of white and blacks.

(ii) These data also tell us upto what extent total number of people or total population had been affected adversely by the fearful or deadly diseases.

(iii) Census data provide us complete information about total number of different communities, their language, their works and means of livelihood as well as about their caste and religion also.

2. What were Civil Lines during the colonial rule?

Ans. After the Revolt of 1857 British attitudes in India were shaped by a constant fear of rebellion. They felt that towns needed to be better defended, and white people had to live in more secure and segregated enclaves, away from the threat of the “natives”. Pasturelands and agricultural fields around the older towns were cleared, and new urban spaces called “Civil Lines” were set up. White people began to live in the Civil Lines.

3. Why did the records of the colonial cities were preserved?

Ans. (i) To know the change of population.

(ii) For reconstructing the history of growth of the colonial cities.

4. Write a common characteristics of the three colonial cities Bombay, Calcutta and Madras?

Ans. The English East India Company established their administrative and trade centers in these cities. Ports developed near these cities.

5. Write the names of any three hill stations established by the British in India?

Ans. Shimla, Mount Abu and Darjeeling.

6. Why were the hill stations developed in India by Britishers?

Ans. (i). Need of British army.

(ii). Strategic places of Army.

(iii). Cool climate temptation for Britisher.

(iv). Free from epidemics.

(v). Healthy climate

(vi). Home away home for Britishers.

(4 MARKS)

1. Assess the impact of health and defence needs on town planning in Colonial Calcutta.

Ans. In 1756, Sirajudula the Nawab of Bengal sacked the small fort which the British traders had built to house their goods. Consequently, when Sirajudaula was defeated in the Battle of Plassey, the British built a new fort. Fort William could not be easily attacked. Around Fort William, a vast open space was left which came to be known as the Maidan or garer-math. This was done so there would be no obstructions to a straight time of fire from the Fort against an advancing enemy army. Soon the British began to move out of the Fort and build residences along the periphery of the Maidan. This was how the English Settlement in Calcutta started taking shape. The vast open space around the Fort became Calcutta's first significant town planning measure.

Lord Wellesley was concerned about the conditions that existed in the Indian part of the city the fith, overcrowding and the poor drainage. He wrote a minute (an administrative order) in 1803 on the need for town planning and set up various committees for this purpose.

It was believed that creating open places in the city would make the city healthier. Consequently, many bazaars, ghats, burial ground and tanneries were cleared or removed. After Wellesley's departure, the Lottery Committee carried on with the work of Town Planning. In its drive to make the Indian areas cleaner, the committee cleared the river bank of encroachment and pushed the poor to the outskirts of Calcutta. The outbreak of cholera and plague epidemics in the 19th century gave a further impetus to town planning. The government believed that there was a direct link between living conditions and the spread of disease. Densely built up areas were regarded as insanitary as it obstructed sunlight and circulation of air.

2. What was the condition of the cities during the colonial rule in India?

Ans. (a). New class of laborious poor and workers were emerging. Rural labourers were migrating to the cities for employment. Many were migrating due to the attractive city life.

(b). Colonial rulers conducted surveys. They collected the statistical datas and published the governmental reports time to time.

(c). Maps of Madras, Bombay and Culcutta were quite different from the old ons. Architecture of the buildings were changed.

(d). A large number of labours were coming to the hill stations where plantation of tea and coffee were done.

(e). There were a number of opportunities for women in the cities. Some social reformers supported women educations which was opposed by the orthodox opposed it.

Gradually the participation of women in public places increased. They entered into the new occupations of the cities as maid, factory labourers, teachers, actress etc.

(7 MARKS)

1. Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

“Escaping to the Countryside”

This is how the famous poet Mirza Ghalib described what the people of Delhi did when the British forces occupied the city in 1857: Smiting the enemy and driving him before them, the victors (i.e., the British) overran the city in all directions. All whom they found in the street they cut down ... For two to three days every road in the city, from the Kashmiri Gate to Chandni Chowk, was a battlefield. Three gates - the Ajmeri, the Turcoman and the Delhi - were still held by the rebels ... At the naked spectacle of this vengeful wrath and malevolent hatred the colour fled from men’s faces, and a vast concourse of men and women ... took to precipitate flight through these three gates. Seeking the little villages and shrines outside the city, they drew breath to wait until such time as might favour their return.

(i) Who was Mirza Ghalib?

Ans. Mirza Ghalib was a famous poet.

(ii) What was happening in Delhi in 1857 and why?

Ans. After the revolt of 1857, Delhi was besieged by the rebels. But soon it was recovered by the British army.

(iii) Which three gates were under the rebels, while British army was in Delhi?

Ans. The three gates were - the Ajmeri, the Turcoman and the Delhi.

(iv) What was the condition of the people of Delhi?

Ans. The colour fled from men’s faces, and a vast concourse of men and women ... took to precipitate flight through these three gates. Seeking the little villages and shrines outside the city, they drew breath to wait until such time as might favour their return.

(8 MARKS)

1. How did prominent Indian merchants establish themselves in the colonial city?

Ans. Prominent Indian merchant establish themselves in colonial city in different phases. They establish themselves in all the three metro colonial cities i.e., Madras (Chennai), Bombay (Mumbai) and Calcutta (Kolkata). First of all these Indian merchants tried to establish their relation of the agents of the company. As there all colonial cities were trade centre and administrative official. Therefore, the Indian merchants could easily get establish their relation with the Europeans. There cities were having different types of comforts such as modern hotels, restaurant, lodging, boarding, transport facilities, roadways and shipping.

Later on Bombay become a major trade centre of opium with China. Prominent Indian merchant played active role in collecting opium from different places of Rajasthan and Malwa. They use to bring opium on the back of horses, ponies, camels by road transport etc. They use to earn a lot of money as middle man between farmers and companies agents and officials. Not only East India Company but some of the government official and later or other European also participated in illegal trade of opium. The prominent Indian merchant became very rich. They constructed big building in all big cities of colonial period. As the industrial revolution in England started and expanded. These colonial cities became entry point for British manufacture goods and for the export of Indian raw materials (which was to be used in large scale industries and factories of England). The prominent Indian merchant also participated in there trade activities. The introduction of railways in 1853 meant a change in the fortunes of towns. Economic activity gradually shifted away from traditional towns which were located along old routes and rivers. Every railway station became a collection depot for raw materials and a distribution point for imported goods. For instance, Mirzapur on the Ganges, which specialized in collecting cotton goods from the Deccan, declined when a railway link was made to Bombay. With the expansion of the railway network, railway workshops and railways colonies were established. Railways towns like Jamalpur, Waltair and Bareilly developed. The Indian merchants included the people of different communities and castes such as Parsi, Marwari, Konkani, Arbs, Gujarati, Baniyas, Boras and Jews. Some of the members of this community invested money in modern big industry, shipping and Airlines also. They donated money for construction of inns, wells, tanks, temples, Mosque, Churches and other places of religion and worships.

2. Describe the growth of cantonments in India?

Ans. For the defence of their Empire, the British Government established cantonments at strategic places. They also built cantonment on the borders of the many important native states to check the disturbance in these states and to control the activities of the rulers. In 1765, Lord Robert Clive initiated the policy of building cantonments for British troops to keep them “cantoned” in one place, to enforce discipline and military way of life and also to keep them in a sanitized environment. During that time there were 62 cantonments in India. In the 18th and 19th centuries, the most important colonies in India were at Lahore, Peshawar, Ferozpur, Agra, Bareilly, Jalandhar, Jhansi, Nagpur, Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and Delhi. The newly established cantonment at Bhatinda is the largest of the 62 cantonments in the country. The Director General of Defence Estates is the apex body of the Defence Estates organization having its offices in various parts of the country. It is entrusted with the task of administration of cantonments and management of defence lands both inside and outside the cantonments.

The cantonments are administered by the Cantonment Boards. The Cantonment Boards are autonomous bodies functioning under the overall control of the Central Government in the Ministry of Defence under the provisions of Cantonments Act, 1924. Cantonment Boards comprise of elected representatives besides ex-officio and nominated members, with the station Commander as the President of the Board. The Central Government provides financial assistance by way of grants in aid to a certain extent to a number of cantonments to balance their budget and for discharging their mandatory civic duties like provisions of public health, sanitation, primary education, street lighting, etc.

3. What are the different colonial architectural styles which can be seen in Bombay city?

Ans. The different colonial architectural styles which can be seen in Bombay city

(A) The new classical / The neo-classical

Its characteristics included construction of geometrical structure fronted with lofty pillars. It was derived from a style that was originally typical of buildings in ancient Rome, and was subsequently revived, re-adapted and made popular during the European Renaissance.

1 The Town Hall in Bombay

2 Elphinstone Circle / Horniman Circle

(B) The neo-Gothic

It is characterised by high-pitched roofs, pointed arches and detailed decoration. The Gothic style had its roots in buildings, especially churches, built in northern Europe during the medieval period.

1 The Secretariat

2 University of Bombay

3 High Court of Bombay

4 Victoria Terminus

(C) The Indo-Saracenic A new hybrid architectural style which combined the Indian with the European style. “Indo” was shorthand for Hindu and “Saracen” was a term Europeans used to designate Muslim.

1 The Gateway of India

2 The Taj Mahal Hotel

A. Very short questions

Q.1 To what extent are census data useful in reconstruction patterns of urbanization in the colonial context ? (2)

Ans. Census data are very useful in reconstructing pattern of urbanization in the colonial context.

- (i) These data are useful of know exact number of population as well as the total population of white and blacks.
- (ii) These data also tell us upto what extent total number of people or total population had been affected adversely by the fearful or deadly diseases.
- (iii) Census data provide us complete information about total number of different communities, their language, their works and means of livelihood as well as about their caste and religion also.

Q. 2 What were Civil Lines during the colonial rule? (2)

Ans. After the Revolt of 1857 British attitudes in India were shaped by a constant fear of rebellion. They felt that towns needed to be better defended, and white people had to live in more secure and segregated enclaves, away from the threat of the “natives”. Pasturelands and agricultural fields around the older towns were cleared, and new urban spaces called “Civil Lines” were set up. White people began to live in the Civil Lines.

Q3. Why did the records of the colonial cities were preserved? (2)

- Ans. (i) To know the change of population.
- (ii) For reconstructing the history of growth of the colonial cities.

Q4. Write a common characteristics of the three colonial cities Bombay, Calcutta and Madras ? (2)

Ans. The English East India Company established their administrative and trade centres in these cities. Ports developed near these cities.

Q5. Write the names of any three hill stations established by the British in India?(2)

Ans. Shimla, Mount Abu and Darjeeling.

B. Short Questions

Q6. What were the new kinds of public places that emerged in the colonial city? what function did they serve ? (5)

Answer

1. (1). By the 18th century , madras, Calcutta and Bombay had become important points and cities. The settlement that came up here were convenient points for collecting goods. The English East India Company built its factories (i.e. mercantile offices) there and because of competition among European companies fortified there settlement for protection. In Madras, Fort St. George, in Calcutta Fort William and in Bombay the Fort marked out the areas of British settlement which were known as ‘White town’. The Indian Merchants, artisan and other women who had economic dealings with Europeans merchants lived outside their fort. These forts in settlement of train own known as ‘Black Towns’.
- (2). After 1850_s cottons mills were setup by Indian merchants and entrepreneurs in Bombay and European – owned jute mills were established in Rishra (1855) on the outskirts of Calcutta.
- (3). Kanpur , Specializing in leather , wooden and cotton textile and Jamshedpur , specializing in steel were prominent.
- (4). In 1864 Viceroy John Lawrence officially moved his councils to Shimla Q7. Why were the hill stations developed in India by Britishers ?

Ans.

1. Need of British army.
2. Strategic places of Army.
3. Cool climate temptation for Britisher.
4. Free from epidemics.
5. Healthy climate
6. Home away home for Britishers.

Any five points are required

Q. 8 Assess the impact of health and defence needs on town planning in Colonial Calcutta. (5)

Ans. In 1756, Sirajudula the Nawab of Bengal sacked the small fort which the British traders had built to house their goods. Consequently when Sirajudaula was defeated in the Battle of Plassey, the British built a new fort. Fort William could not be easily attacked.

Around Fort William, a vast open space was left which came to be known as the Maidan or aftermath. This was done so there would be no obstructions to a straight time of fire from the Fort against an advancing enemy army. Soon the British began to move out of the Fort and build residences along the periphery of the Maidan. This was how the English Settlement in Calcutta started taking shape. The vast open space around the Fort became Calcutta's first significant town planning measure. Lord Wellesley was concerned about the conditions that existed in the Indian part of the city the fifth, overcrowding and the poor drainage. He wrote a minute (an administrative order) in 1803 on the need for town planning and set up various committees for this purpose.

It was believed that creating open places in the city would make the city healthier.

Consequently many bazaars, ghats, burial ground and tanneries were cleared or removed. After Wellesley's departure, the Lottery Committee carried on with the work of Town Planning. In its drive to make the Indian areas cleaner, the committee cleared the river bank of encroachment and pushed the poor to the outskirts of Calcutta. The outbreak of cholera and plague epidemics in the 19th century gave a further impetus to town planning. The government believed that there was a direct link between living conditions and the spread of disease. Densely built up areas were regarded as insanitary as it obstructed sunlight and circulation of air.

Q. 9 What was the condition of the cities during the colonial rule in India?(5)

Ans. 1. New class of laborious poor and workers were emerging. Rural laborers were migrating to the cities for employment. Many were migrating due to the attractive city life.
2. Colonial rulers conducted surveys. They collected the statistical data's and published the governmental reports time to time.
3. Maps of Madras, Bombay and Calcutta were quite different from the old ones. Architecture of the buildings were changed.
4. A large number of labours were coming to the hill stations where plantation of tea and coffee were done.

5. There were a number of opportunities for women in the cities. Some social reformers supported women educations which was opposed by the orthodox opposed it. Gradually the participation of women in public places increased. They entered into the new occupations of the cities as maid, factory labourers, teachers, actress etc.

C. Long Questions

Q. 10 How did prominent Indian merchants establish themselves in the colonial city? (10)

Ans. Prominent Indian merchant establish themselves in colonial city in different phases. They establish themselves in all the three metro colonial cities i.e., Madras (Chennai), Bombay (Mumbai) and Calcutta (Kolkata). First of all these Indian merchants tried to establish their relation of the agents of the company. As there all colonial cities were trade centre and administrative official. Therefore the Indian merchants could easily get establish their relation with the Europeans. There cities were having different types of comforts such as modern hotels, restaurant, lodging, boarding, transport facilities', roadways and shipping. Later on Bombay become a major trade centre of opium with China. Prominent Indian merchant played active role in collecting opium from different places of Rajasthan and Malwa. They use to bring opium on the back of horses, ponies, camels by road transport etc. They use to earn a lot of money as middle man between farmers and companies agents and officials. Not only East India Company but some of the government official and later or other European also participated in illegal trade of opium. The prominent Indian merchant became very rich. They constructed big building in all big cities of colonial period. As the industrial revolution in England started and expanded. These colonial cities became entry point for British manufacture goods and for the export of Indian raw materials (which was to be used in large scale industries and factories of England). The prominent Indian merchant also participated in there trade activities.

The introduction of railways in 1853 meant a change in the fortunes of towns. Economic activity gradually shifted away from traditional towns which were located along old routes and rivers. Every railway station became a collection depot for raw materials and a distribution point for imported goods. For instance, Mirzapur on the Ganges, which specialized in collecting cotton goods from the Deccan, declined when a railway link was made to Bombay. With the expansion of the railway network, railway work shops and railways colonies were established Railways towns like Jamalpur, Waltair and Bareilly developed. The Indian merchants included the people of different communities and castes such as Parsi, Marwari, Konkani, Arbs, Gujarati. Baniyas, Boras and Jews. Some of the members of this community invested money in modern big industry, shipping and Airlines also. They donated money for construction of inns, wells, tanks, temples, Mosque, Churches and other places of religion and worships.

Q.11 Describe the growth of cantonments in India ? (10)

Ans. For the defence of their Empire, the British Government established cantonments at strategic places. They also built cantonment on the borders of the many important native states to check the disturbance in these states and to control the activities of the rulers. In 1765, Lord Robert Clive initiated the policy of building cantonments for British troops to keep them “cantoned ” in one place, to enforce discipline and military way of life and also to keep them in a sanitized environment. During that time there were 62 cantonments in India. In the 18th and 19th centuries, the most important colonies in India were at Lahore, Peshawar, Ferozpur, Agra, Bareilly, Jalandhar, Jhansi, Nagpur, Bombay, Calcutta, Madras and Delhi. The newly established cantonment at Bhatinda is the largest of the 62 cantonments in the country. The Director General of Defence Estates is the apex body of the Defence Estates organization having its offices in various parts of the country. It is entrusted with the task of administration of cantonments and management of defence lands both inside and outside the cantonments.

The cantonments are administered by the Cantonment Boards. The Cantonment Boards are autonomous bodies functioning under the overall control of the Central Government in the Ministry of Defence under the provisions of Cantonments Act, 1924. Cantonment Boards comprise of elected representatives besides ex-officio and nominated members, with the station Commander as the President of the Board. The Central Government provides financial assistance by way of grants in aid to a certain extent to a number of cantonments to balance their budget and for discharging their mandatory civic duties like provisions of public health, sanitation, primary education, street lighting, etc.

Q. 12 What are the different colonial architectural styles which can be seen in Bombay city ? (10)

Ans. The different colonial architectural styles which can be seen in Bombay city.

(A) The new classical / The neo-classical

Its characteristics included construction of geometrical structure fronted with lofty pillars. It was derived from a style that was originally typical of buildings in ancient Rome, and was subsequently revived, re-adapted and made popular during the European Renaissance.

1 The Town Hall in Bombay

2 Elphinstone Circle / Horniman Circle

(B) The neo-Gothic

It is characterised by high-pitched roofs, pointed arches and detailed decoration. The Gothic style had its roots in buildings, especially churches, built in northern Europe during the medieval period.

1 The Secretariat

2 University of Bombay

3 High Court of Bombay

4 Victoria Terminus

(C) The Indo-Saracenic A new hybrid architectural style which combined the Indian with the European style. “Indo” was shorthand for Hindu and “Saracen” was a term Europeans used to designate Muslim.

1 The Gateway of India

2 The Taj Mahal Hotel

Q.13 Passage based question :- (8)

Read the given passage carefully and answer the questions that follows :-

“Escaping to the Countryside”

This is how the famous poet Mirza Ghalib described what the people of Delhi did when the British forces occupied the city in 1857: Smiting the enemy and driving him before them, the victors (i.e., the British) overran the city in all directions. All whom they found in the street they cut down ... For two to three days every road in the city, from the Kashmiri Gate to Chandni Chowk, was a battlefield. Three gates – the Ajmeri, the Turcoman and the Delhi – were still held by the rebels ... At the naked spectacle of this vengeful wrath and malevolent hatred the colour fled from men’s faces, and a vast concourse of men and women ... took to precipitate flight through these three gates. Seeking the little villages and shrines outside the city, they drew breath to wait until such time as might favour their return.

(i) Who was Mirza Ghalib ? (1)

Ans. Mirza Ghalib was a famous poet.

(ii) What was happening in Delhi in 1857 and why ? (2)

Ans. After the revolt of 1857, Delhi was seized by the rebels. But soon it was recovered by the British army.

(iii) Which three gates were under the rebels, while British army was occupying Delhi? (2)

Ans. The three gates were – the Ajmeri, the Turcoman and the Delhi.

(iv) What was the condition of the people of Delhi ? (3)

Ans. The colour fled from men's faces, and a vast concourse of men and women ... took to precipitate flight through these three gates. Seeking the little villages and shrines outside the city, they drew breath to wait until such time as might favour their return.

Important Questions

Ques1. How did prominent Indian merchants establish themselves in the colonial city ?

Ans. Prominent Indian merchant establish themselves in colonial city in different phases. They establish themselves in all the three metro colonial cities i.e., Madras (Chennai), Bombay (Mumbai) and Calcutta (Kolkata).

First of all these Indian merchants tried to establish their relation of the agents of the company. As there all colonial cities were trade centre and administrative official. Therefore the Indian merchants could easily get establish their relation with the Europeans. There cities were having different types of comforts such as modern hotels, restaurant, lodging, boarding, transport facilities, roadways and shipping. Later on Bombay become a major trade centre of opium with China. Prominent Indian merchant played active role in collecting opium from different places of Rajasthan and Malwa. They use to bring opium on the back of horses, ponies, camels by road transport etc. They use to earn a lot of money as middle man between farmers and companies agents and officials. Not only East India Company but some of the government official and later or other European also participated in illegal trade of opium. The Indian prominent merchant become very rich. They constructed big building in all big cities of colonial period. As the industrial revolution in England started and expanded. These colonial cities became entry point for British manufacture goods and for the export of Indian raw materials (which was to be used in large scale industries and factories of England). The prominent Indian merchant also participated in there trade activities.

The introduction of railways in 1853 meant a change in the fortunes of towns. Economic activity gradually shifted away from traditional towns which were located along old routes and rivers. Every railway station became a collection depot for raw materials and a distribution point for imported goods. For instance, Mirzapur on the Ganges, which specialized in collecting cotton goods from the Deccan, declined when a railway link was made to Bombay. With the expansion of the railway network, railway workshops and railways colonies were established. Railway towns like Jamalpur, Waltair and Bareilly developed. The Indian merchants included the people of different communities and castes such as Parsi, Marwari, Konkani, Arbs, Gujarati. Baniyas, Boras and Jews. Some of the members of this community invested money in modern big industry, shipping and Airlines also. They donated money for construction of inns, wells, tanks, temples, Mosque, Churches and other places of religion and worships.

Q2. To what extent are census data useful in reconstruction patterns of urbanization in the colonial context ?

Ans. Census data are very useful in reconstructing pattern of urbanization in the colonial context.

- (i) We knew that every colonial government believe in colour and racial discrimination. There census data provide us the total number of the people in this way these data are useful of know exact number of population as well as the total population of white and blacks.
- (ii) After knowing the number and exact population of white and blacks. It becomes easier to prepare town, planning, design its formation, provision for future expansion, keeping in view living standards, needs and style of the whites as well as of the blacks. These data also tell us up to what extent total number of people or total population had been effected adversely by the fearful or deadly diseases.
- (iii) Census data provide us complete information about total number of different communities, their language, their works and means of livelihood as well as about their caste and religion also.
- (iv) The growth of cities was mentioned through regular head counts. By the midnineteenth century several local censuses had been carried out in different regions. The first all-India census was attempted in 1872. Thereafter, from 1881, decadal (conducted every ten years) census become a regular feature. This collection of data is an invaluable source for studying urbanization in India.
- (v) When we look at these reports it appears that we have heard data to measure historical change. The endless pages of tables on disease and death, or the enumeration of people according their age, sex, caste and occupation, provide a vast mass of figures that creates an illusion of concreteness. Historians have however, found that the figures can be misleading. Before we use these figures we need to understand who collected the data, and why and how they were gathered. We also need to know what was measured and what was not.

Q3:- Assess the impact of health and defence needs on town planning in Colonial Calcutta.

Ans. In 1756, Sirajudula the Nawab of Bengal sacked the small fort which the British traders had built to house their goods. Consequently when Sirajudaula was defeated in the Battle of Plassey, the British built a new fort. Fort William could not be easily attacked. Around Fort William, a vast open space was left which came to be known as the Maidan or garer-math. This was done so there would be no obstructions to a straight time of fire from the Fort against an advancing enemy army. Soon the British began to move out of the Fort and build residences along the periphery of the Maidan. This was how the English Settlement in Calcutta started taking shape. The vast open space around the Fort became Calcutta's first significant town planning measure. Lord Wellesley was concerned about the conditions that existed in the Indian part of the city the fith, overcrowding and the poor drainge. He wrote a minute (an administrative order) in 1803 on the need for town planning and set up various committees for this purpose. It was believed that creating open places in the city would make the city healthier. Consequently many bazaars, ghats, burial ground and tanneries were cleared or removed. After Wellesley's departure, the Lottery Committee carried on with the work of Town Planning. In its drive to make the Indian areas cleaner, the committee cleared the river bank of encroachment and pushed the poor to the outskirts of Calcutta. The outbreak of cholera and plague epidemics in the 19th century gave a further impetus to town planning. The government believed that there was a direct link between living conditions and the spread of disease. Densely built up areas were regarded as insanitary as it obstructed sunlight and circulation of air.

Read the following passage carefully. Answer all the questions given after it.

Escaping to the country side. (Page No. 3/8 Part III)

This is how the famous poet Mirza Ghalib described what the people of Delhi did when the British forces occupied the city in 1857. Limiting the enemy and driving him before them, the vectors (i.e. the British) overran the city in all direction. All whom they found in street they cut down. For two to three days every road in the city from the Kashmiri gate to Chandni Chowk, was a battle field. Three gates, the Ajmeri, the Turocaman and the Delhi were still held by the rebels at the naked spectacle of this vengeful wrath and malevolent hatred the colour fled from men's faces and a vast concourse of men and women.... took to precipitate flight through these three gates. Seeking the little villages and shrewdness outside the city, they drew breath to wait until such time as might favour their return.

Passage Based Questions

Ques No. 1 Who was Mirza Ghalib?(1)

Ques No.2 What has been described by Ghalib about the people of Delhi when the British forces occupied the city in 1857? (3)

Ques. No.3 Describe the Role of the 'British forces, just after occupying the city?(2)

Ques No.4 Write the names of all historical gates mention in the above passage?(2)

Ans .1 Mirza Ghalib was a famous Urdu Poet of Delhi in 19th Century.

Ans 2. (a) The People of Delhi were driven by the vectors (i.e the British). Some rebels faced the British forces for two or three days. They kept under their control the gates of Delhi- the Ajmeri gate, the Turocaman gate and the Delhi gate.

(b) All the naked spectacle of the vengeful wrath and malevolent hatred the colour fled from men's face.

(c) A vast concourse of men and women of Delhi took to percipate flight through different gates of the city.

(d) Seeking the little villages and shrines outside the city, the people of Delhi drew breathe to wait until such time as might favour their return.

Ans 3 (i) Smiting the Mughal forces, other rebellious troops and the people of Delhi the British troops occupied most parts of the city in last days of the meeting of 1857, the forces engaged themselves in overrunning the city in all direction.

(ii) All whom they found in the street they cut down. For two or three days every road in the city from the Kashmiri Gate to Chandni Chowk was a battlefield, after three days most of the rebels were forced to send way to seek shelters in little villages and shrines.